

This website uses cookies – these are small text files that are placed on your computer to save and collect basic information to help our website provide a better user experience.

In general, cookies are used to retain user preferences, provide anonymised tracking data to third party applications, such as Google Analytics, and to make your browsing experience more efficient.

As a visitor to our website / portal, you consent, through the use of cookies, to us collecting information on you such as, but not limited to, your IP address, geographical location of where you accessed our website / portal, information on how you use our website / portal, anonymised information collected by cookies on our website / portal, and information on the type of device and browser you use to access our website / portal. This information is anonymised and we use this for a legitimate interest to help us provide a website / portal in the most effective manner for you.

As a rule, cookies make browsing our website a better experience. However, you may prefer to disable cookies on this site and on others. The most effective way to do this is to disable cookies in your browser. We suggest consulting the Help section of your browser.

Should you decide to add a comment to one of our blog posts, we ask you to provide some minimal details that allow you to make best use of the functionality. You may contact us at anytime to delete any information you may have posted and later change your mind about.

If you have any questions about either our privacy or cookie policy please contact our Data Protection Officer, Emma Holder on admin@expat-academy.com.